
Every physical bearing stays on one side of every split; the code asserts it in every run.